WEDNESDAY, DEC. 29, 1875.

THE national banks of New York City have an aggregate capital of $68,500,000 and a surplus capital of $32,684,800. In several instances the surplus exceeds the capital stock. In this respect the famous Chemical Bank heads the list, its capital being but $300,000, whilst its surplus is $3,249,800. The City Bank, with $1,000, 000 capital, has $1,545,300 surplus. Bank of Commerce has a capital of $10,-000,000 and a surplus of $3,340,800, and the Mercantile Bank, with $1,000,000 capital, has over $2,000,000 surplus.

He spent some months quiet-ly in that country and in England, and received benefit, especially from the satis-faction of visiting the lands of his early years. But in May, 1875, one side of his body was thoroughly paralysed. He was then in Edinburg, and attributed the stroke to a long waik which he had take to hear the late Dr. Arnot. Rev. John Moffat.

This faithful minister of the Gospel, whose death has just occurred, was born in Dumfreshire, Scotland, on the lat of January, 1816. His mother died when he was quite young, and his father when he was about ten years old. At the age of twelve he began life for himself, as a shepherd boy. He subsequently spent four years in mercantile pursuits, in Bristol, England, but at the end of that period, by the failure of the hone with which he was connected, he lost all his earnings, and he returned to Scotland.

In 1837, having sufficient money to pay his passage, he emigrated to this country. His first employment was obtained near Rochester, New, York, but before long befound his way to Columbians county, the avenue of a large glass globe. VISIT TO GIRARD COLLEGE.

which he was connected, he lost all his earnings, and he returned to Scotland.

In 1837, having sufficient money to pay his passage, he emigrated to this country. His first employment was obtained near Rochester, New, York, but before long fefound his way to Columbiana county. Ohlo, Hore, in the summer he worked for the farmers, and in the winter he taught school. Three or four years of age, although poor and having a family depending upon him for support, he determined to study for the ministry.

It was impossible under the circumstances that he should go regutarly through a college or Theological Syminary. But he put himself under the training of Rev. O. A. Patterson, of New Lisbon, and so well improved his opportunities that he was in due time licensed to preach by the Presbytery. Not long afterward he was called to be the pastor of the Prosbyterian Church of St. Clairaville, whither he removed in 1847. In his charge he remained for about fourteen years. He next accepted a call to the two churches of Bellaire and Hockhill the former of which was organized under his labors. For about two years he served this double charge. In 1863 he became the pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church of this city, and he contained in this relation until his death, the man the pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church of this city, and he contained in this relation tutil his death, the man and the wall, by means of which you can walk around the entire building. The blanes which terminated in his leath began with a alight stroke of paralysis in February, 1871. Since then he has not preached, although for a time he took some part in the services of his chard, and have the capture of the charge to the voung minister on that occasion. All that medical skill could suggest was done for his restoration to health, but, at though at times there, was partial improvement no cure could be effected. The malady was of a kind which baffled human effort. In Occasion was a partial improvement no cure could be effected. The malady was of a fire the different specimens in this room I concluded to go on the roof and take a view of the city. I had to go up a narrow stairway and around several turns to get on the roof, and when I did I found it, like the rest of the building, marble. The view of the city from the roof of this building is very fine. I could see beyond the Delaware river into Camden, N. J., and quite a distance west of the Schuylkill, also over a part of Fairmount Park. Within the College grounds are several other buildings, used as a boarding-house for the students and residence for the President. A fine marble monument, supporting the statue of a soldier, and erected to the memory of several of the students who were killed in the late war, and having each of their names on it, stands close to the College on the west side.

[Extract from aWheeling boy's letter to his father.]

I was in the old State House yesterday, and saw quite a number of relics of the old Continentals, besides the pictures of most of them. A chair used by Washington and a number of other domestic utensils that belonged to him are there, and, among other relies of old furniture, are the table and furniture used by the presiding officer of the first Congress, several chairs used by the first Congress, and two or three chairs that belonged to William Penn. A section of a beam from the flag-of-truce ship "Minden," on board of which Francis E, Key composed the "Star Spangled Banner," is to be seen there; also a cannon ball that was cut out of the side of an English vessel over which Commodore Perry triamphed in a naval engagement; the drum bar has gone down in that city to $51 to $53 a ton.
